Location

Penzance attracts a range of UK and international tourists all year round. Penzance is widely known as one of the most premier towns of Cornwall located on the south coast with a resident population of some 20,000 plus. This is boosted during the summer months with visitors to the area. An electronic footfall counter has recently counted a pedestrian flow of circa 3 million passing through Penzance. In addition the town has good road, rail and air links and is the social and administrative centre for Penwith. The A30 trunk road, which is the major thoroughfare in and out of the County, is close by and Newquay Airport is within 32 miles distance. London can be easily reached from the airport or via the A30/M5 links out of Cornwall. Penzance also has a main line railway station offering a daily service to Paddington, London.
